

Tips to ensure you get Tirosint

Get what your doctor prescribed

Ensure success on your treatment path by double-checking your prescription and making sure that it matches what your health care professional has prescribed. Because of its unique gel cap formulation, Tirosint has no generic equivalent and should not be switched at your pharmacy for another levothyroxine therapy.

Ask for Tirosint by name

Regardless if it's your first prescription or a refill/dose adjustment, check for the Tirosint brand name.

Look for the unique Tirosint pack

Tirosint is packaged in a unique, color-coded 30-count blister pack, adding convenience to your daily dosing regimen. Here are all of the Tirosint strengths and their distinct box colors.

The golden capsule

There are no dyes in Tirosint, so all strengths of Tirosint gel caps look the same when removed from their color-coded packaging. The small, golden capsule appears different from other levothyroxine therapies because it contains only four ingredients: levothyroxine, gelatin, glycerin, water.

Check your Rx

Before you leave the pharmacy with your prescription, make sure to check that you have received Tirosint in the strength that your physician prescribed. If the dose is wrong, or it doesn't say Tirosint on the package, speak to your pharmacist.

Pay as little as $25
